Pokemon Let's Go Guide at the moment, this is every standalone Pokemon Let's Go Pikachu and Eevee guide that we still have - but again, expect a lot more to follow soon! The first Pokemon RPG will appear on a modern home console here! The Adventures of Pokemon: Let's Go, Pikachu! and Pokemon: Let's Go, Eevee! For Nintendo Switch is inspired by game favorite Game Boy Pokemon Yellow: Special Pikachu Edition. This classic has been reimagined to take advantage of the unique capabilities of the Nintendo Switch system, as well as incorporating the fun and intuitive Pokemon catching mechanics found in Pokemon GO. There is a lot to be done and many Pokemon catch around the Kanto region, so it's a good idea to have a plan before you dive into the action. To help you start your journey, we've come up with some helpful tips to prepare you for the quest. Whether you're a longtime Pokemon fan or it's your first time playing Pokemon RPG, these tips will prove useful as you try to complete your Pokedex and become a Pokemon League champion. Catch a ample Pokemon This may seem like a pretty obvious tip for playing Pokemon, but one of the most important things you can do in these titles is catch a lot of Pokemon. But wait, we can explain why! Aside from the obvious benefits of completing your Pokedex, there are other reasons for catching multiple Pokemon. First of all, catching Pokemon is essential for getting Exp. Points that raise the level of all the Pokemon in your game. How to avoid wild Pokemon at the beginning of the game can lead to situations later when you encounter others Pokemon and gym leaders whose Pokemon are at a much higher level than your own. Catching a lot of wild Pokemon early on will help protect against this. Similarly, you can also earn a living Catching Pokemon. You can even earn extra candies if you transfer The Pokemon to Professor Oak. Your bunks can be used on Pokemon to increase your stats such as HP, attack, defense, speed, and more. In addition to powering your team, catching a lot of wild Pokemon can earn you rewards from some people you encounter throughout the Kanto region. Want to add a popular Grass Bulbasaur-type Pokemon to your team? A friendly woman in the city of Cerulean will give you one as a reward for catching 30 Pokemon- they don't even have to be different species. You will eventually run into other people who will offer you Charmander and Squirtle if you continue to increase your catch overall. Another advantage of catching multiple Pokemon is that you will sometimes encounter one of Professor Oak's assistants hanging in the gate at the end of the route. They are interested to see how many different types of Pokemon you have caught and will reward you with elements and new gameplay features if you meet their requirements. Use lures So we know it's a good idea to catch loads of Pokemon, but you'll have to take how many wild Pokemon accidentally pop up in the high grass, right? Well, not necessarily. If you're a Pokemon GO player, you're probably familiar with the incense element. This useful tool lures wild Pokemon to your location for a limited time. A comparable item exists in Pokemon: Let's Go, Pikachu! and Pokemon: Let's Go, Eevee! - just called Lure. You can purchase Lures at either Pok'Mart or Celadon as soon as you have earned two gym icons. The lures cause an increase in the number of Pokemon, especially rare Pokemon, to appear in close proximity to you for a limited time. Creating a stream of wild Pokemon on your way can delay reaching your next destination. But for reasons that we've mentioned (and more!), it's well worth your time to catch as many wild Pokemon as you can, especially at the beginning of the game. Don't be tempted to just rush to the next area, take some time to roam the high grass in search of Pokemon and throw a few Pokemon balls. As you progress in your adventure, you will eventually find more powerful baits for sale. Super Lures and Max Lures become available for purchase once you earn four and six gym badges, respectively. The effects of these updated items last longer than the standard bait, giving you more time to create a collection of Pokemon. Create Catch Combos there is another reason to lure a few wild Pokemon to your location- a new feature known as Catch Combos. Catching the same kind of Pokemon consistently over and over again, you'll build your Catch Combo. As The combo count increases, you'll earn more nods to power your Pokemon. It will also increase the chances of encountering a Pokemon, which has more impressive stats, allowing you to form a stronger team. Another advantage of the big Catch Combo is that it becomes more likely that Pokemon appears next to you. For example, as your Catch Combo gets higher while you're in the Viridian forest, you're more likely to have a wild bulbasaurus. There are some Pokemon in the game that will appear in the wild just through these unusual encounters, so experiment with Catch Combos in each area to see what Pokemon appear. Big Catch Combos will also increase your chances of finding Shiny Pokemon, so if you're a fan of unusually colored Pokemon, this is what you want to try. If you happen to run into another Pokemon while working on creating your Catch Combo, don't worry. If you run away from the meeting, your lane will not be broken. However, if a wild Pokemon runs away from you, Catch Combo will end. Focus and use lures well and you'll find that all kinds of great bonuses open up for you. Hunt down the elusive Pokemon Region Kanto in Pokemon: Let's Go, Pikachu! and Pokemon: Let's Go, Eevee! will be very familiar to fans who have played the original adventures of Pokemon. However, there are a few key differences now that will affect how you complete the pok'dex. In particular, several well-known areas from previous games have different features in updated games. For example, the Rocket Game Corner in Seladon and the safari zone north of The City of Fuchsia were once places where you could get rare Pokemon such as Kangashan, Tauros, Porygon and Dratini. This is no longer the case, so you will need to find them by means of various means. Many of these Pokemon will now be available as wild Pokemon, so make sure to carefully explore many routes throughout the Kanto region. But keep in mind that some of these rare Pokemon require high catch Combo counts before they appear. It is also worth noting that some of these rare Pokemon, such as Scyther and Pinsir, are exclusive to different versions of the game, so you need to trade to collect them all. And be sure to talk to every person in the game, you may be pleasantly surprised to get a rare Pokemon from a generous Kanto resident. Find useful items with Pokemon While your Pokemon partner will prove to be a faithful companion as you explore the Kanto region, don't forget that you can also bring another Pokemon from his poke ball to make it travel with you. Aside from it just being a ton of fun to have another Pokemon follow you around, there are advantages to reaping as well. For example, your Pokemon companion will occasionally notice hidden objects while travelling. When your Pokemon stops following you and runs to a place on earth, this is good news for you! Pokemon can reveal items such as berries sold items (such as nuggets or Big Pearls), and even stones that can be used to develop some Pokemon. The Pokemon that follows you around Grow more emotionally attached to you, making it more effective in combat. As its love for you grows, you will find that Pokemon is gaining a bit more Exp points. from battles and catch catching Pokemon. He may also be able to recover from condition conditions on his own and have an increased likelihood of landing critical hits. Ride on Pokemon If you're looking to get around faster in the Kanto region, take a look at your Pokemon collection. When you release Pokemon from their Pokemon (such as Arcanine and Onix), they don't just follow along behind you, you get to ride them! Riding Pokemon usually increases the speed of your travel around the world, allowing you to reach your destination faster. Of course, when you're on the back of a Pokemon, you're a much bigger target for wild Pokemon to run in, so if you want a quick and continuous commute, consider using Repel before jumping on Pokemon. Repels are basically the opposite of Lures, preventing wild Pokemon from appearing for a while after their use (and, like lures, Repels are also available in longer-lasting Super and Max varieties). Unlike the Pokemon that follow you around, the Pokemon that you drive won't detect hidden items, so you need to decide if you prefer to get a speed boost or potentially find some valuable goodies. Get The Alolan Form Pokemon Those who played Pokemon Sun, Pokemon Moon, Pokemon Ultra Sun, or Pokemon Ultra Moon already know that the tropical region of Alola is home to some wonderful regional Pokemon variants that were originally discovered in the Kanto region. And you don't know, you can get these special Alolan-shaped Pokemon in Pokemon: Let's Go, Pikachu! and Pokemon: Let's Go, Eevee! One way to do this, of course, is to connect your Nintendo Switch game to Pokemon GO and send these regional variants from Pokemon GO to the GO game console parks (which are located north of Fuchsia City). Another way is to trade for them! When traveling through the Kanto region, be on the lookout for people who will offer to exchange their form of Pokemon alolan for its Cantonese equivalent. These generous trainers tend to hang out in Pokemon centers, so don't miss your chance to do a cool trade. Alolan shaped Pokemon are always a different type combination than their Kanto region counterparts, and they learn some different moves, so having these Pokemon around is a great way to have more options when you form your best team! Master Secret Techniques LongTime Pokemon players will remember HMs as a way to teach Pokemon special moves that are used both in combat and while wandering around the world to affect the environment. For example, HM Cut is both a normal type attack in combat and a convenient way to chop shrubs blocking the path. In Pokemon: Let's go, Pikachu! and Pokemon: Let's Go, Eevee!, you can instead get more convenient secret methods. These are special skills used only outside of combat that your Pokemon partner learns, so Unlike HM moves, all secret methods can be known to one Pokemon. They can clear the foliage (Chop Down), fly you in previous places (Sky Dash), allow you to through the water (Sea Skim), and more. Another noticeable difference between these useful skills and HM moves is that you can start using secret techniques as soon as you discover them, without having to possess a specific gym icon. Some secret techniques are needed to advance through the history of the game, so if you find yourself stuck and unable to progress, repeat your steps and talk to everyone you can- you may have just missed a person who can teach your partner the technique. By the way, Pokemon Veterans is a place where you discover secret techniques not necessarily the same places where you found the equivalent of HMs back in the day... Making money aspiring Pokemon trainers need a solid cash flow if they hope to make it to Kanto. You will earn money at the end of coach battles, but there are ways to help maximize your income, which will undoubtedly be a huge boon during your journey. As mentioned already mentioned, the Pokemon that follow you around will from time to time reveal items that can be sold on various Pok' Marts throughout the game. Check every item in the bag after collecting it- description will let you know if it's something worth selling. Keep a special eye for Star Pieces, which are very valuable and will bring you a hefty amount. Talking to people in each city is also a good idea, as some of them will offer you the opportunity to earn items every day in exchange for doing a simple job for them. For example, there is a woman in Pewter City who will give you a valuable Big Pearl in exchange for babysitting her Slowpoke for a few minutes. Your newfound fortune can be used to buy all kinds of things such as powerful TMs like Hyper Beam or adorable outfits for Pokemon, but be sure to save some money to stock up on useful items such as lures, Great Balls, and Ultra Balls. You will need many of those to complete your Pokedex and help build a powerful team. And don't forget to stop by The Celadon department store in Seladon. This multi-colored shopping mall is a treasure trove of goodies to buy. Manipulating nature is a good way to make sure your Pokemon team works with better efficiency to take a look at the nature of Pokemon. Most nature can help improve Pokemon stats (such as attack, defense, speed, etc.), but the trade-off is that while nature can help one statistic, they can hinder another. If you check the Pokemon stats screen, the statistics highlighted in pink will help the nature of Pokemon, while the statistics highlighted in blue will be difficult. Fortunately, there is a way to manipulate the nature of wild Pokemon that you encounter. Head to the Pokemon Centre in Seladon and chat with Madame Seladon. For This fortune teller will present a couple of questions to you. Your answers will give the Pokemon you encounter for the rest of the day to have a certain Nature. One of her questions corresponds to statistics that helps the result of nature, while the other corresponds to match statistics that interfere. Experiment with different combinations of responses to see what nature you run and what statistics affect each Nature. Traditionally, serious Pokemon trainers would like to increase their team's attack, special attack, and speed stats, so keep this in mind as you assemble your Pokemon crew. Of course, the team of your dreams can rely on other improved statistics, so find out what works best for you! By showing the words This guide should help you get started as you first immerse yourself in Pokemon: Let's Go, Pikachu! and Pokemon: Let's Go, Eevee!, But there's a lot more to discover in the Kanto region.
